

New Dimension for Energy Medicine in Hopeless Cases

Mohamed El Naggar, Fatma El Taweel, Yasser El Naggar

Summary:

This study presented 2 cases in which the role of modern medical treatment stopped at certain points and refused any other trials for therapy.

Energy medicine started at these certain points and diagnosed the patient on the energy level and planned the therapy for energy disorders which were corrected and this balance was reflected on improvement of chemical and pathological changes of the body and the patient improved clinically.

This improvement is sufficient for the patient to return back to normal daily life in a good health. Also it restored life for some patients who lost their hope.
